

2011 Master Recipient Nirmal S. Mann, MD, MS, PhD, DSc, MACG

Dr. Nirmal S. Mann is currently Professor of Medicine and Gastroenterology, University of California, Davis School of Medicine; Senior Consultant, Gastroenterology and Hepatology, University of California Davis Medical Center (UCDMC); and Director, Gastroenterology and Hepatology, UCDMC-Folsom Campus.

Dr. Mann, who is originally from the village of Marauli Kalan in Punjab, India, grew up in Delhi, India and became a Naturalized U.S. Citizen in 1978. He graduated from Christian Medical College in Ludhiana, India and did his Residency in Internal Medicine and GI Fellowship at Northwestern University Medical Center in Chicago, where he also obtained an M.S. in Gastroenterology. Later during his academic career he obtained a Ph.D. in Nutrition and a D.Sc. in Gastroenterology.

He holds Fellowships in many scientific organizations including the AGA, ASGE and others. He is certified as a Fellow in the specialty of Internal Medicine and also in the subspecialty of Gastroenterology by the Royal College of Physicians of Canada. In 2007 he was named a Master by the American College of Physicians.

In 1973, he started the GI Fellowship Training Program at the University of Louisville School of Medicine. He has served as Chief of Gastroenterology, Hepatology and Nutrition at the VA Medical Centers in Louisville, Kentucky, Temple, Texas, and Martinez, California. He has won outstanding teacher awards three times.

He has served as editor, co-editor, member of the editorial board, referee and reviewer for many journals including The American Journal of Gastroenterology, Gastroenterology, Journal of Clinical Gastroenterology, and Annals of Internal Medicine.

He has published 336 papers, abstracts and book chapters, and has authored two books on Gastroenterology. He has made 215 scientific presentations at national and international meetings including as a Visiting Professor. His present research interest is the use of Breath Hydrogen in IBS patients and performance of deep enteroscopy without the use of fluoroscopy, over-tube or balloons.

Dr. Mann became a Fellow of the ACG in 1973. He has chaired and co-chaired scientific sessions at ACG Annual Meetings and Postgraduate Courses, and has served on several ACG Committees including Credentials and Educational Affairs. From 1986-1992, he was the ACG Governor of Northern Texas. His wife, Surinder K. Mann, MD, FACP, AGAF, FCG, is Professor of Medicine and Gastroenterology at the University of California, Sacramento. Their elder daughter, Neel K. Mann, MD, MPH, is an ACG Member, and is on the staff of Cedars-Sinai in Los Angeles. Their younger daughter, Sheel K. Mann-Seidler, JD, lives with her husband, Peter Seidler-O'Malley, MBA, in Los Angeles.